ST. RAILWAY GETS NEW TRIAL IN MONDY CASE

Judge Laughlin, of the Fourth circuit court, late Wednesday set aside a verdict for Dr. S. A. Monday in the sum of $2,000 against the Memphis Street Railway company and ordered a new trial. Monday sued the defendant company for damages growing out of injuries he received in a street car collision.

In the case he testified that he operated on himself to remove a pin protrusion caused from broken ribs due to the accident. The street railway company Thursday on motion for a new trial offered testimony to show that the operation was in fact performed by Dr. Eugene Johnson for a cause which did not grow out of the injuries at all. Upon insistence that a fraud had been committed and on account of conflicting claims of both parties, the judge decided to have the case tried over again.

Loew's Lyceum.

"A Girl in Bohemia," the sensational New York stage success, which has just been adapted for the screen and has been shown at Loew's Lyceum, beginning Thursday in connection with the five-act vaudeville program, topped by Jack Levy and his Four Symphony Sisters. Miss Hyland appears in the role of Winifred Bryce, daughter of a college professor, whose ambition to write a popular novel of so-called Bohemian life takes her from her simple home to the artists' quarter of a big city. Her adventures amid the Bohemian set of New York are amusing, interesting and full of dramatic situations.

BAXTER BOND CASE IS SET FOR MONDAY

Sureties for Man Accused of Hooker Killing Seek to Recover Fortune.

The Baxter bond case is set for argument in Chancellor Perry's court for Monday.

The case involves the bond of Charles Baxter and accused of the killing of Louis Hooker by Johnnie Ward and the subsequent sensational killing of Ward in the courthouse just opposite the first criminal court by Tom Hooker, Louis Hooker's brother.

Baxter was charged with complicity in the murder of Louis Hooker. He was released on bond in the sum of $15,000 after spending some time behind the bars of the jail. P. Ernest Miller, new city claim agent, 150 Hurlbut, who was later killed in his dye shop on Poplar avenue by unidentified parties, Mrs. Victor Demarchi and Frank J. Jones.

While Judge Puryear was absent from Memphis application was made to the late Judge Jacob S. Galloway of the probable cause for a reduction of the bond to $5,000. The judge reduced the bond. When Judge Puryear returned he ordered Baxter arrested. Baxter had fled the country. When heard of again he was in Buenos Aires. He was arrested there and Miller, one of the bondsmen, went to Argentina to get extradition papers to bring him back. The state department declined to give him a passport to Argentina, he claimed.

The bond was then forfeited by the criminal court. The bondsmen then set up the claim that the surety factor was never served on them but execution was served on them, the records show. This bondsmen then filed an injunction in chancery court to prevent collection and a pro confesso judgment was taken when defendant in the case failed to appear. Hunter Wilson, then state's attorney, asked for a reopening of the case and Chancellor Heiskell agreed to it. His ruling on the injunction was sustained on appeal to the supreme court and the case now comes up on its merits.

TEN VIOLATORS OF SANITARY LAW FINED

Ten violators of the state sanitary laws were arraigned before Squire Geo. H. Coleman Thursday morning and assessed fines aggregating $120. The majority of those fined were first offenders and for this reason fines of $10 and costs were given. In two instances $20 fines were assessed. Restaurants and meat markets principally were the businesses operated by the men fined. Those fined were:

Will Bailey, Lamar boulevard, $10; John Williams, Mississippi avenue, $20; John Asmus, DeSoto cafe, East Calhoun avenue, $20; Lem McCarrall, North Front street, $10; N. Demopolis, McLemore avenue, $10; J. L. Potts, Connecticut Pie Co., South Front street, $10; Bob Gray, Mulberry street, $10; Nick Asmus, Postoffice building, Calhoun avenue, $10; D. A. Nicklas, South Second street, Johnson's place, $10; and H. Allison, South Second street, the Yellow Dog Lunchery, $10.

Squire Coleman stated that although the case tried Thursday against H. S. Ains of the Yellow Dog Lunchery, was a second offense there had been such an improvement in the condition of the restaurant that a fine of only $10 and costs was assessed.

PAY CITY EMPLOYEES IN TIME FOR XMAS

Clerks in the office of Dave Wells, city paymaster, are working overtime making out salary checks for policemen and firemen in order that the men will get their stipends in time to purchase Christmas presents. This will give them four days in which to make purchases.

AUTOISTS SETTLE INJURY SUITS OUT OF COURTS

The $5,000 suit of Ruby McNicholas against Frank Hayden, in which she claimed damages for personal injuries when his automobile ran her down on Peabody avenue, was settled out of court Thursday. The amount of the settlement is not known. The case was to have been tried in Judge Capell's division.

Another compromise was effected in Second circuit court when J. W. Cannon, suing W. H. Nell for personal injuries growing out of an automobile accident, agreed to take $150, provided the defendant paid the costs of court.

PHIL WALDEN WILL GET HIS OLD JOB BACK

Phil Walden, engineer at the police station, who was fired from his job a short time before the November election by the city administration forces, charging that he was unduly active in behalf of the anti-Williams candidates, has been told to report at police headquarters on Jan. 1 and resume his duties there.

Phil says that he will see to it that the officers and prisoners are kept clean and warm, providing the coal profiteers do not raise the price of coal beyond the city's ability to buy.
